CECILIA EDUARDS

Biography

"As an architect, I'm trained to design buildings with a time-perspective of 100 years. On this design idea, I started Eduards Accessories Sweden."

Award-winning Swedish architect/designer Cecilia Eduards has a passion for combining traditional Nordic handcraft and building techniques with contemporary urban design.

In 2013, after 10 years of architectural design work, Gothenburg-based Cecilia Eduards started to explore how to implement the sustainable design theories of her daily work as an architect into accessory design. Striving to create items to be loved for years, the goal was to find the balance between Scandinavian simplicity and contemporary design. As a trained architect, the aspects of beauty and function are equally important.

"Näver" is the Swedish word for birch bark and the Näver Collection, launched in 2015, is inspired by the traditional birch bark braiding technique used for centuries in the Nordic countries. The Näver Collection by Cecilia Eduards has been awarded the Form 2018 and Form 2020 design award by the Swedish Form Association and the FORM 2018 seal of quality by the German Bundesverband Kunsthandwerk e.V.

Cecilia Eduards runs Eduards Accessories from the Gothenburg Studio, implementing and exploring the architectural perspective on sustainable accessory design.

About Eduards Accessories Sweden

Sprung from the field of architecture, Eduards Accessories creates fashion accessories made with care. To us, sustainable fashion is based on three factors: long-term design, sustainable materials and ethical production. Therefore, we use chrome-free vegetable tanned leather and carefully design items with the potential to get more beautiful over time.

All our items are designed by an architect in our Gothenburg Studio and made in Sweden out of vegetable tanned leather. The Scandinavian design heritage is clearly visible in our collections as the Swedish nature and traditional techniques are part of Eduards DNA.

We do not present seasonal fashion but strive to create a family of bags, all unique yet related. Using high quality vegetable tanned leather and sustainable design our goal is to present items to be loved for generations. By highlighting the used and loved item as equally - or more - attractive as things brand new in our social media channels, we hope to raise the awareness of the everlasting qualities of good materials and sustainable design.

Eduards Accessories items are presented in digital/physical stores in Scandinavia and Europe and in selected stores in Australia, Asia and the US.
